With a gorgeous setting in a 19th-century mansion in Midtown, Atlanta's urban and oh-so-gay neighborhood, Stonehurst Place & Carriage House is a chic accommodation destination. The 1896 mansion house is impeccably preserved, yet a careful look reveals that it's kept pace with the times. Not only are the amenities up to date — especially the oversized bathrooms and the high-end electronics — but the furnishing is contemporary as well, if subtly so. The three rooms and five suites are spacious and airy, with restored period woodwork and well-chosen antiques. Though the service and amenities are first-rate the appeal of Stonehurst Place comes down to atmosphere — this is an elegant and refined side of Atlanta that's hard to come by.
