Everyone deserves the opportunity to plan for and to reach all the fun milestones in life such as buying your first home, marrying the person of your dreams, or planning for and living a confident retirement. For folks in the LGBTQIA+ community, to consider asking for financial help regarding these important topics and more, it can be a daunting process. Not with me! Being an out-advisor and an active member of the LGBTQ community, you'll learn that you and I often share similar values. You'll learn that my team and I have an unwavering commitment to diversity and respect for all. You'll learn that my passion is caring for you and helping you make good financial choices during your life. I'll listen to learn and to better understand your goals and dreams. We'll plan and work together to help you make important personal and financial decisions, while making you as comfortable as possible throughout the process. I am ready to help, don't hesitate to reach out to introduce yourself. Send me a text, email or give a call at my office. I look forward to meeting you
