For more than a decade Patrick Martin has been a top industry performer in Los Angeles. Handling a diverse portfolio of properties; he retains a satisfied family of clients and is known for unparalleled service, methodical follow through and meticulous organization. From first-time home buyers to experienced real estate investors, his clients are local, national and international. A seasoned background as a general contractor provides Patrick with an understanding of the market that competitors lack. His unique and thorough insight of the business is paramount in helping clients envision a house or condo as their future home. Patrick's hallmark is repeat and referral business, the result of his discretion as a trusted mentor whose vast knowledge and proven track record enables clients to make the educated and calculated decision that is best suited for their needs both today and in the future. Offering a hands-on business approach coupled with calming guidance, Patrick's calculated strategies produce desired results. Accessible and available, Patrick is directly involved in the entire process of client transactions, from finding a home through the escrow process and long after the close. He never hands off clients to an entourage of assistants.
