Deciding to file for bankruptcy is a difficult decision, but if you have wage garnishments, foreclosures, bank account levies, creditors calling every day, and/or no realistic way of repaying your debt, bankruptcy may provide the relief you need in order to have a fresh start and a peace of mind. A timely bankruptcy consultation can make a significant difference in your financial future. My background: I graduated Loyola Law School in the top 10% of my class and received an undergraduate degree in Management Science from University of California, San Diego. I am a proud member of NACBA (National Association of Consumer Bankruptcy Attorneys) and a member of the Beverly Hills Bar Association. Also, I regularly volunteer for HALSA (HIV and Aids Legal Services Association), and help people that can no longer repay their debts get some stress relief by becoming the attorney creditors must contact instead of the person going through difficult times. What distinguishes my practice: I work hard to make the process of filing for bankruptcy as painless as possible. I guide my clients with compassion through what may be one of the hardest decisions they will ever have to make. I answer calls and emails within 24 business hours. I deal with your case from start to finish and don't pass your case off to a paralegal or secretary. I believe that if you hire and pay for an attorney you should have the opportunity to consult your attorney, not his/her secretary or assistant. I handle a limited amount of cases at a time. This allows me to keep careful track of all cases and to know the nuances of every case I handle. If you call, I will know who you are and will know what issue you are talking about. You will not get that from attorneys you only see before you pay your fee or attorneys that handle hundreds of bankruptcies a month.
