

Chuck Stewart Ph.D. LGBTQ Educator Historian Writer

Los Angeles
Web Based

Phone: 310-838-6247

Thank you for taking the time to visit my website. This has been my life. It has been very interesting. I still love ballet, automotive design, physics/math, and writing. I've taken many risks, succeeded at some, and failed at others. The experiences and people have made my life very rewarding. Here are some of my current projects: Teach math, statistics, physics, and physical science at the university level. I am one of the leading authorities on LGBTQ culture, politics, and history. It would be great to teach semester-long classes on the topic at the university level, and/or conduct diversity-training workshops for businesses, educational institutions, and police. I write, on average, one academic book a year on LGBTQ topics besides other smaller writing projects. I have written/edited 18 academic books and encyclopedias (representing over three million published words) and hundreds of academic articles. I enjoy writing screenplays and novels. Come to me with your ideas. Maybe we could collaborate. See the Books & Articles link for all the books released in 2020 besides my past writings. Teach professional-level ballroom dancing. Have fun perusing the website.

Website
Email
Tell a Friend